

Unruly Kids

I don't like little Albert Clarence, though he's a sprightly lad, because he won't obey his parents, his mother and his dad. This Clarence boy is strangely gifted, he is no person's fool, and divers prizes he has lifted down at the village school. He knows what war or revolution distinguished every king, and when it comes to elocution, he makes the welkin ring. It sends a sort of thrill and shiver all up my spine and neck, when he arises to deliver "The Boy and Burning Deck." In divers ologies excellent, in Greek he cuts much grass, and when it comes to hard word spelling, he leaps up all his class. But when his mother or his father remarks, "Go, hunt the eggs," he seems to think it too much bother to exercise his legs. And when his father or his mother observes, "Go, feed the cat," he says to them, "My little brother is here—let him do that." There are no flies on Albert Clarence, his teachers all agree; but kids who don't obey their parents don't make a hit with me. WALT MASON.

WATER BEING PAID FOR
AT HIGH GRAIN PRICES

Standardization Experts Urge System of Trading on a Dry Matter Basis.

Assertion that water is being paid for at grain prices, and that only the weight of dry matter in grain and flour should be considered in making sales and purchases, is made by grain standardization experts of the Department of Agriculture.

Such a method is fair for producer, dealer and consumer alike, the experts declare. The percentages of moisture in different lots of grain and seeds and their products are always appreciable and sometimes very high. The purchaser who merely buys such products by weight or volume, therefore, without consideration of moisture content, is often paying a grain price for considerable quantities of ordinary water.

The advantages in trading on a dry matter basis are not confined to the dealer, but are shared by the producer, the experts say. Because grains as they come from the farm often contain such large percentages of moisture that they are in danger of fermenting and molding, dealers take a risk in handling them, the experts point out.

For this reason the prices paid to farmers are usually placed low enough to compensate for probable loss or gain of the cost of artificial drying. The average price struck is usually lower than the farmer would receive on a dry matter basis, and, therefore, penalizes good farming methods. The general adoption of the dry matter basis, the department specialists say, would, on the other hand, place a premium on better farm practices, resulting in the production of dryer grains.

100,000 ARE EXPECTED
TO ATTEND ENCAMPMENT

Brig. Gen. Harrison Tells of Plans for Reunion of Confederates in Capital.

From four to five thousand confederate soldiers will attend the next annual encampment of the United Confederate Veterans' Association, to be held in Washington May 24, 25 and 26 next. Wives, widows and daughters and sons will make up a host of 100,000 visitors.

This estimate of attendance was given by Brig. Gen. George P. Harrison, C. S. A., commander-in-chief of the order. He is in Washington to assist in the arrangements for the encampment.

He is the youngest general of the former Confederate army and is one of the few of that rank still living. He addressed a meeting last night at Camp 171, United Confederate Veterans, which, with civic bodies and the civil authorities, will be hosts of the encampment. The meeting was attended by a large contingent of Daughters of the Confederacy.
